Dear Customers,

Implementation of Hourly Parking Charges at AAT

AAT's Terminal 2 operations has been in full swing since early 2007, and we are glad that terminal users had provided positive feedback in the latest opinion survey of our services and new facilities.

However, in the past months we have observed that some vehicles are taking advantage of AAT's free parking facility by over-staying beyond their purpose of visit, and depriving other visitors' use of the limited parking space. It has become essential that we have to curb this before parking becomes a problem at AAT. Subsequent to reviewing possible measures, we have arrived at introducing hourly parking charges with effect from 1 July 2008. The details of the charging mechanism and conditions are attached for your reference.

We would like to emphasize that this is not an attempt to obtain more revenue, as most visitors will be given between 2 to 5 hours of free parking time, more than sufficient to complete their tasks at AAT. In addition, our Truck Control System will automatically remind drivers before expiry of free parking time to prevent over-staying and incurring parking charges unintentionally.

I would seek your cooperation to inform your colleagues regarding the above, and reiterate that the main purpose of introducing parking charges is to discourage over-staying, and ensure that visitors continue enjoying efficient and hassle free services at AAT.

Yours sincerely,
Asia Airfreight Terminal Co. Ltd
